Employment Opportunities at NTSCORP

NTSCORP is an organisation funded to carry out the functions of a native title representative body in NSW and the ACT. Through the provision of a variety of services, NTSCORP acts to protect the traditional rights and interests of Aboriginal communities in NSW and the ACT.

The legal group within NTSCORP provides advice and representation to Traditional Owners seeking to have their native title rights recognised under the Native Title Act 1993 (Cth) and to achieve other land and water based management outcomes.

Solicitors at NTSCORP are responsible for litigation matters before the Federal Court, appearances in the National Native Title Tribunal and in negotiating consent determinations, Indigenous Land Use Agreements and other agreements with proponents such as mining companies. We also carry out policy and advocacy work in relation to these areas.

NTSCORP would like to invite all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander law students currently completing their 3rd, 4th or 5th year to attend a seminar at NTSCORP’s Redfern Office in relation to the work undertaken by NTSCORP and employment opportunities available for law students both while studying and also following completion of studies.
